Legislature to Bolt Special Call Unless Business Is Rushed

Distinct Sentiment in Opposition to Session Manifested, Many Law Makers Plan to Leave Saturday, Philipp Says Bill Must Be Considered.

(Special Telegram to the Gazette)

Madison, May 26.—A distinct sentiment in opposition to the special session and its legislation was manifested with the convening of legislators in the capitol yesterday afternoon. In the assembly particularly, dissatisfaction at being called away from farms and business at this time was outspoken. Shortly before 2 o'clock the rumor went through the lobby that an attempt to insurge would be made. La Follette forces were seen to gather hurriedly and it was understood that something would be done.

Fight Increased Taxes.

The house was called to order, organization completed, and the governor invited to deliver his address. This all took place but no effort was made to adjourn sine die in the lower house. La Follette leaders when questioned last night explained that this would be only playing the administration's game and that every effective means would be employed to kill the increased taxes. The senate was not outspoken in its dissatisfaction. La Follette and socialist senators expect and express a desire to get through as soon as possible.

Wilson Leaves Session.

Senator Roy R. Wilcox, after declaring himself present left Madison to fill several speaking engagements. He will be gone until Saturday.

As plans now appear there will be a general exodus Friday and Saturday with legislators going home with no intention to return, the idea to sort of mess and dog the proposed measures around, kill them that can be reached by Saturday and let the others alone, the members returning home and ignoring the call.

Governor Philipp personally this morning expressed the determination of forcing action on the tax. There will be no going home, he asserted, until these bills are either killed or passed.

Philip Is Inconsistent.

"This legislation is a serious matter and it will have to be given considerable attention," he said. "A change in the front on the hospital measure was evidenced when Senator Oscar R. Olson introduced a new bill which would drain the treasury remaining from the soldier cash bonus tax which amounts, he declares, to about $1,500,000."

"It seems to me," Senator Olson said in introducing his bill, "that the governor is trying to protect and relieve certain interests from bearing their share of the burden of this legislation. The soldiers' bonus money was raised by a sur tax and is available. Why raise more money by a mill tax that is a larger burden to tax payers."

Deut. Gov. Dithmar made it known that he would within the week announce his candidacy for governor. Wisacres declare that it is make or break with Dithmar and it is now or never for him.

Political Caucuses Held.

A number of political caucuses are being held, the non-partisan leaders, socialists and La Follette members taking this opportunity of getting together and fixing things for mutual assistance.

There is a certainty that a fight will be precipitated between the Phillip force and other elements. They are now just reaching the way around looking for a sparing advantage but whatever is being keyed up to date and the day is sure to bring out a better fight with the legislation a mere side issue and political differences the big thing.

School Tax Considered.

A plan to raise an additional funds needed to support the university and normal schools of the state by taxes on incomes instead of by poll taxes was presented in the senate of the legislature today by Senator H. J. Seaverson of Winona county. At the present time the university is supported by a 3-8 mill tax which falls on the general property of the state and the normal schools are supported by a 1-6 mill tax. Governor Phillip had recommended an increase of these taxes in order to finance the institutions in order to finance the institutions.

The rates in the Seaverson bill are the same as those which appeared in the soldiers' educational bonus law which raised upwards of $1,500,000.

Hits All Income.

The Seaverson income tax bill strikes the incomes of both individuals and corporations. Individuals would be taxed on net incomes in excess of $3,000 and corporations would be taxed on their net income. The rate for individuals ranges from 7-20 per cent to 1-1 per cent of their incomes in excess of $3,000. The corporation rate varies from 4-10 per cent to 1-2 per cent on all incomes in excess of $3,000.

Session Is Brief.

The senate session this morning was brief and an adjournment was taken until this afternoon to permit the finance committee to consider appropriation measures.

The assembly passed a bill by Helmenau increasing the minimum salary of supervising teachers from $80 to $100 a month and raised the minimum salary of county superintendents of schools on the grounds that the county boards can now increase the salaries of county superintendents of schools.

Tuition Fee Raised.

It passed a bill increasing the non-resident tuition fees in schools maintaining the ninth and tenth grades from $1 to $2 a week. It killed a bill changing the fees for register of deeds and passed a bill increasing the minimum that may be raised to

HITCHCOCK OPPOSES WILSON'S PLEA FOR ARMENIA MANDATE

ADMINISTRATION LEADER
IN TREATY FIGHT DE-SERTS PRESIDENT.

VOTE THURSDAY

House Delays Action Due to Absence of Secretary
Colby.

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, May 26.—Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, administrative leader in the treaty fight, said today he did not expect to support President Wilson's request for authority to accept a mandate over Armenia.

I understand other democratic members of the foreign relations committee also will not give their approval, said Senator Hitchcock.

To Vote Tomorrow.

The senate committee plans to dis- pose of the president's request ad- versely tomorrow.

The meeting of the house foreign affairs committee to consider Presi- dent Wilson's request that he be authorized to accept a mandate over Armenia was postponed today because of the inability of Secretary Colby to attend.

Mr. Colby, asked to appear, said he understood his previous engagement would make it impossible for him to appear either today or tomorrow. No date was an- nounced for the hearing.

House Opposes It.

Republican committee members said they were particularly anxious to get Mr. Colby's views before re- porting on the bill, although they had been outspoken in their opposition to the mandate and declared the president's request would be refused.

It is the plan of the leaders to have the house act first so as to make the consideration by the senate unnec- essary.

C. E. Pettingill, special deputy of the commission, was in charge of the demonstration. He summarized the law and its possible results to the various unions which automobile- lads were enabled to comply with the May 1 order which became effective May 1.

"To focus the lamp in the reflector," said Mr. Pettingill, "drive the motor vehicle to place where the light from the headlights will be thrown upon the other ver- tical surface, 25 feet from the vertical surface."

"Remove the glass front and cover up or disconnect one lamp, so that the light from one lamp only will show on the vertical surface and back- way to the reflector until the circle of light on the wall is of smallest diameter. Then the center of lamp filament is at the focus. Drawing the lamp back of the focus increases the size of the circle of light finally, so that it is not accepted in the center of the circle. Moving the filament of the lamp ahead of the focus expands the circle of light produced on the vertical surface in a similar manner, except that now the rays cross each other."

James True, prominent in the affairs of the Carpenters' local and the repre- sentatives of the various unions which automobile- lads were enabled to comply with the May 1 order which became effective May 1.

James True took the matter up with the various unions and stated to day that opinion is favorable to project the head of the labor to project in certain portion of its time gratis to erect the building. It is a case parallel to the erection of the plant of the Toy Tractor com-

The DIARY OF AN ENGAGED GIRL

By PHILLIS PHILLIPS

THE END OF A PERFECT DAY.
With a little we had... We danced our heels off, and sang the old songs. It was every bit as thrilling as being at some dance in Greenwich village. I can assure you, John, and I reminisced madly about the days when we haunted all and any queer cafes that we could possibly find, and roared at the memory of some of our wildest escapades. The only time that his face dropped was when I announced my engagement to him.

"Aw, Lindsey, I had always thought that you at least would be the one of the crowd to remain true to Art and Life," says he sadly. I answered that I expected to remain true to him, but there, my old loves, but circumstances had made it imperative to be true to myself first!

I don't think that he got me at all. His eyes were quite dull for a long time after. But when I decided with him to give up making mud-sippers without a qualm, As we linked she flew about a gossamer sandwich made and up considerably. I can tell you. And almost went delirious with delight, when after dancing for a long time in my uncomfortably new pumps I suddenly whirled them off my feet in the middle of the maddening stomp, and found myself lighter than ever. "That's the old Lindsey," he said, giving me a hug of approval. "Lord, but it's good to know that you're still, one of us, in spite of fiance."

He considered. It was a glorious evening. And by the time that we realized that there was a train to catch for most of us, we parted in the good old way, racing each other all along Chestnut street, as far as the Broad street station, where we patted each other farewell as best we could, and turned to our various trains.

I was to spend the night with Greeny, so we found ourselves finally on the last train to Merion, tired, but infinitely happy. The hotel was the sweetest little house all to herself, not far from the station, and we walked along in the moonlight to the house, enjoying every step of the way. It was a glorious mid-summer's night and unbeknownst, perfect communion.

Until we came to the front door, the air was rent by the wails of Greeny's daughter, Elsie Jane. She certainly had a good pair of lungs, that child. In a moment Greeny was transformed into a mother, and fairly flew to end up the stairs to quiet her offspring.

I followed more soberly, and managed to knock over a stand in the hall, which in turn seemed to inflame Elsie Jane to redoubled efforts in yowling. I sat me down on the bottom step and waited for God to act. Greeny disappeared, beamng, and somewhat short of breath from her exertions.

Elizabeth—that's her real name, Elizabeth Green, Greeny nickname—and which we call her, is in New York at present studying. Consequently she is alone save for an aunt of hers, who lives in one of the rooms upstairs and leaves Greeny pretty much to her own devices, probably because she is deaf. Greeny was, and is one of the most promising artists that I know, and yet she told me that for two years she had hardly touched a brush. I call it scandalous. She calls it maternity! But this as it took her sternly to account for not mixing the two a bit, especially now that she is practically free. No Whitey to look for or anything. Of course she told me that she would start in to work again, eventually, and I am sceptical. There is an old saying about making mud-sippers without a qualm. As we linked she flew about a gossamer sandwich made and up considerably. I can tell you. And almost went delirious with delight, when after dancing for a long time in my uncomfortably new pumps I suddenly whirled them off my feet in the middle of the maddening stomp, and found myself lighter than ever. "That's the old Lindsey," he said, giving me a hug of approval. "Lord, but it's good to know that you're still, one of us, in spite of fiance."

LEGION LAUNCHES GREAT CAMPAIGN

Eighty Campaigners Lined Up for Week's Drive for 2,000 Members.

With an unlimited goal, but hopes of getting after every one of the 2,000 ex-servicemen of the city not already members, the men of the American Legion started off with a whirl last night, picking up teams by each of the eight captains previously appointed, dividing of a roster of 1,800 names of non-members between them, and defining plans of a campaign with the features of a special meeting held at the city hall.

This morning, reports of activity commenced to come in to headquarters of Campaign Manager V. E. Hemming. They showed that before nightfall approximately 50 members had been added to the roll and that as the teams open the throttle wide with the perfection of their system, the new addition will swell that number each considerably.

When smaller towns than Janesville can garner 80 to 90 percent of their prospects and make immediate success of their campaign drive, Mr. Hemming stated last night that there should be no doubt that this city would do equally as well.

IS THE PRIMARY LAW TO BLAME?

There has never been a necessity for the use of money in the campaign of a presidential candidate until this year, especially in any such large sums. We have passed so many laws regulating nominations and elections and made it necessary for the man who, either by his own ambitions or at the request of friends or demands of admirers,

would enter the field for the presidency, to declare himself a candidate and then carry on a scrambling campaign in a primary. A candidate has no way out, except to spend money, no matter how dastardly that might be to himself. A primary costs more to the individual candidate than does an election. While the ultimate machinery is the same, the personal equation is so large that the burden of cost must rest on the individual and is not divided among an army of men who are candidates for other offices, as is the case prior to an election.

If a person will stop to make an estimate of what two or three workers looking after the interest of the candidate in every precinct of the United States would cost, the total would be surprising, and to those who abhor the use of any money in a campaign, appalling. Add to that,

rent and office, a force to look after headquarters,

and the printing and postage on publicity, and the total is enough to call for an investigation. Yet we have made it impossible for a candidate to carry on a campaign actively without the use of these sums.

It is all very pretty—that theory about the voter getting out and having a free mind in selecting a candidate in the secrecy of the voting booth, but in practice he does not do it. We have an example in Wisconsin where the presidential preference vote was so small as to be no indication whatever of the state sentiment. It was plain also in Vermont where in the city of Burlington, with 3,000 votes normally, only 105 were cast in the primary for president. There are numerous other examples.

It looks very much as though we should be obliged to reform the reform. Even with the necessity of large sums of money to meet the parfectly legitimate expenses of a canvass for the presidency, the very principle of seeking or receiving large contributions from men and corporations of wealth implies an obligation for the future that is dangerous and decidedly objectionable.

EMPTY CARS AND RAIL TROUBLES.

In the effort of all forces concerned to rehabilitate rail transportation and move the freight tied up at terminals, the empty car is the largest factor. The figures of the investigation disclosed

the fact that roads in the east held an enormous percentage of empties needed for the transportation of coal and grain from mines and elevators.

There were not available loads destined to these coal mines and elevator points and hence the government ordered the empty car movement even at a loss to the roads in order to stabilize the car supply. Shifting empties is an uneconomical policy resorted to only as a last resort. The New England roads, comprising group A, Eastern district, have 41 per cent more box cars than they own, and 63 per cent more coal cars. The former are urgently needed in the grain belt and the latter are just as urgently wanted in the Pennsylvania coal fields.

Group B, including the New York Central,

Lackawanna, Erie, Lehigh Valley and Delaware

and Hudson, is virtually normal with 6 per cent

fewer box cars and 6 per cent more coal cars

than they own. The empty box cars these roads are rushing westward, it was explained, are coming through from New England.

The Allegheny district, including most of the great coal carriers, has 16 per cent fewer coal cars than it owns and 20 per cent more box cars. The Pocahontas or southern coal district has only about half (55.8 per cent) of its total owned coal cars.

In the South group A, comprising the coast lines, has 46 per cent more box cars and 10 per cent fewer coal cars. Group B, further west, has 23 per cent more box cars and 24 per cent fewer coal cars.

In the Northwest, the great wheat and corn district, where demands for box cars are most insistent, there are 73 percent more coal cars and 16 per cent fewer box cars than the roads in that district own. Canadian roads, also grangers, lack 15 per cent of their box car equipment.

With this situation confronting the roads there was but one thing to do and that to quickly esablish a condition of equalization. We are solving the freight problem now by this costly method.

THE SPECIAL SESSION.

While the message of the governor to the legislature called in special session, is not objectionable in text, and the public will agree that many of the things asked are needed some day, there still remains the fact that none of them are of such a character that they could not have waited for the regular session. In other words, there appears to be no emergency for the session. Nor should the fight against the university have been precipitated and the enemies of the state's greatest educational institution been given an opportunity to attack at a point which the act of the governor and his advisers have made vulnerable.

Acrimony, politics played from both ends, antagonisms, campaign material, more opposition to the state administration because of the increase in taxes proposed, and a whole Pandora's box of evil will grow out of the special session. The fight started at once with the opening and will continue. It is possible that the state administration can summon enough votes to carry out the program and the farmer members want to get home to see to waiting work, so that the session will not be of long duration, but it will have done little real good and much of harm before it adjourns.

MR. LENROOT SOUNDS A WARNING.

Senator Lenroot sounded a warning to the senate Tuesday when the bill for the increase of the salaries of the postal employees was under discussion. "The great business and commercial interests, the heavy patrons of the postal service,"

said Senator Lenroot, "are interested in this increase because they believe that the entire postal system, as it is now, will be utterly broken down through wholesale resignations from the service, and that the employees will seek more profitable employment elsewhere, unless congress

very speedily takes action giving them just recompense."

Mr. Lawrence's Washington telegram of today

sums up the position of the advocates of the mandate for Armenia, by saying that the cost of such a mandate "is infinitesimal compared to the cost of getting peace when these troublous little countries provoke a world war." There has not been a world war since Napoleon Bonaparte's days except the one precipitated by Germany.

The argument seems rather far-fetched and altogether incompetent. And of all the countries in the world Armenia would be the last to be either the instigator or the cause for a world or any other war. She is so poor that England and France

TRACK MEET FORMS READY TOMORROW

Boys Showing Enthusiasm in Big Outdoor Classic—Urged to Start Practice.

Entry blanks for the grade school track meet to be held at the fair grounds on the morning of June 12 will be ready for distribution to the boys tomorrow, and will be found in the Y. M. C. A. or the Gazette the first thing tomorrow morning. Mechanical difficulty prevented the blank being published in last night's Gazette as planned.

From indications the meet will be a success. As soon as the boys got wind of the plans last night they gathered in little groups and talked over what they would enter. Every one will take a part in some event.

Start Practicing.

It is suggested that the boys waiting to get to come out and before getting weighed, the boys start practicing. Training for the events will mean much more in the chances to win. In the running races, mark out the distance you are going to participate in practice the start and your stride. The same with the jumping events and the baseball throw.

Before any entry will be accepted, each boy must be weighed, the official weigher is at the "Y." Gymnasium every afternoon. Give him a call and get out how you tip the scale, get your blank and check off your entry.

Then let's start working for the big day.

GRANT BROWNIES BREAK TIE AND WIN OUT, 15-10

Grant school Brownies won their seventh game of the season yesterday by beating Washington school, 15-10. They were sighted until the seventh inning when the score stood 7-7. COUNTY WILL LOSE SANATORIUM FIGHT

Realty Men See No Chance of Supervisors Forcing Hemmingsway To Sell.

That Rock county will get into a hopeless court tangle if it tries to force the sale of the original Hemmingsway farm as a site for the proposed tuberculosis sanatorium was boldly expressed by several members of the Janesville Realty board at the second dinner and meeting at the Grand hotel last evening.

The point came up in a general discussion of local property that the wife's signature must generally be obtained to make a contract binding. Members were advised when getting exclusive listings of property for sale to get both the man and his wife to sign in every case involving the homestead.

Shemmons Court Decision. A land contract which involves the homestead or any part of the land on which it is located is void unless the wife's signature is obtained, said Wm. Casey, in a speech in the district court at Milwaukee in 1905. It was $1,000 if he made a land contract which his wife would not sign. The supreme court in a decision in a similar case in 1918, canceled all doubt by a sweeping decision making it absolutely necessary to have the wife's signature to papers involving the homestead.

I know because it cost me $100 to find out."

In the county's case, it is stated that Mr. Hemmingsway signed a land contract at the realty office, but his wife refused to sign. It is the belief of many men that if the county fails to push the matter through the courts it will spend a large amount of money in litigation and then lose out in the end.

Commissions Are Fixed. Final details of organization, completed by the board last night, provide for a fixed rate of commissions on all property sales, as follows: On all improved city and farm property 3 per cent up to $10,000; 2 per cent above that; 5 per cent straight on vacant lots and unimproved property with a minimum fee of $25.

The size of the commissions was decided upon after the president, H. L. Gallarneau, had read a series of realty boards in Akron, O., Muskegon, Mich., Gary, Ind., Lansing, Mich., Rockford and Bolot. The Janesville board is now the same as in those cities and in some instances lower.

Gary fees as high as 10 per cent are charged for property sales, it was pointed out.

The operation of the board, was clearly explained by Mr. Gallarneau in response to various questions.

"Each member must list with the board all property he has listed, not just the persons he sold it to. The original lister sells the property himself or will take the whole commission, but if some other agent makes the sale, he and the original lister will receive 50 per cent each.

Service Is Motive. The whole idea of a realty board is to give service to owners of property and also to help us in our work. Sometimes it may happen that a house may be sold twice. In such a case the agent first in with the down payment money makes the sale."

It was voted to require listings to be good for at least 30 days with no maximum time limit fixed. Discussion showed that members are greatly interested in what the legislature may do in regard to rents at its special session this week.

In order to give all real estate dealers an opportunity to become charter members of the board it was voted to hold the charter open for 30 days.

Twenty-one signed up as members of the Real Estate Board, including H. L. Gallarneau, president; J. B. Humphrey, vice-president; R. J. Kampis, secretary; Fay D. Chay, W. F. Pender, William C. Simpson, John B. Fountain, Frank D. Hayes, W. J. Cannon, W. J. Hall, J. L. Terry, E. E. Lowell, George H. Drummond, William Casey, Alvin Siesel, F. L. Proctor, Fletcher, Richard H. Taylor, V. L. METHODISTS TAKE FORWARD STEP, LIBERALIZE CREED

(By F. F. LEWIS.) Des Moines, Ia., May 26.—The most outstanding thing done by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church in connection with the adoption of a new creed report presented by Judge Rogers of the United States appellate court which eliminates the theological test for reception into the Methodist church.

This report was passed by a judicious committee which an appeal was made for a decision on the cal' treatise, but a simple statement of man's duty to God, his creator, and to his fellow man, his brother, and to his neighbor.

It looks as if the conservatives are going to get through a vote to reconsider which will reverse the stand of Saturday. They have been neither sleeping nor thinking since that time and have been active in the campaign stirring up sentiment in favor of going back to the old order. If this vote to reconsider carries, many of the progressives will change their vote to "no" for the sake of harmony. In the "message of the majority" as well as in political conventions, if the conservatives are of such nature that they die hard and in many instances so rally as to bring about disruption or counter-revolution, the conservatives will be looked upon with greater apprehension than the progressives, while being in the majority, and while winning in the first count, will magnanimously give up.

Form Is Eliminated.

The form eliminated by the adoption of this majority report was: "Do you believe in the doctrines of religion as set forth in the standard of religion of the Methodist Episcopal Church?"

The 26 articles are a miscellaneous group, clipped by John Wesley from the 39 articles of the Church of England, dealing with everything from the marriage of ministers to purgatory. This coming statement to the generalities how coming into the world relates now coming into opposition reads: "Do you have a desire to flee from the wrath to come and be saved from your sins?"

This action, if not reconsidered and reversed, is one of the most radical steps taken by any protestant church in a century. It will vindicate the contention of many of its ministers and laymen that the Methodist movement has never been a theological movement, but a work of revival of the Gospel of Jesus as interpreted by the apostles which was in turn no theological nor metaphysical.
